Berlusconi wins Italian election

Volunteer populist agenda raises comparisons to Perot

by Frances D'Emilio
The Associated Press

ROME -- With the parties that have led Italy since World War II brought down by scandal, voters were turning to a media magnate and his conservative alliance to fill the void, exit polls and projections showed Monday.

Silvio Berlusconi, whose populist themes and volunteer-based campaign organization raised comparisons with Texas billionaire Ross Perot, entered the political arena two months ago to keep the former Communists out of power.

The projected outcome showed how much his message of privatization, tax cuts, job creation and the virtues of the free market touched a chord. He also stressed conservative themes such as stricter immigration laws and vaguely defined "traditional values."

As leader of the top vote-getting party, Berlusconi would be a likely choice to be named premier. Italy's president generally picks a member of the largest party in Parliament as premier, and the premier forms a government that must be approved by both houses.

It was unclear whether the right could muster enough unity or support from the center to form a government.

Exit polls gave his alliance 47 percent in the Chamber of Deputies to 31 percent for the leftist coalition dominated by former Communists.

The conservatives were leading by a narrower margin in the Senate, according to projections by the Abacus firm for RAI state television.

The expected win by Silvio Berlusconi's alliance stunned the left and promised to usher in a new era in Italian politics.

His coalition was expected to win a majority in the lower house of parliament, according to projections.

"We have reached our goal," he said, claiming victory hours after the polls closed Monday.

In his concession speech, Achille Occhetto, leader of the leftist coalition dominated by former Communists, warned the right would "not be capable of giving a government to the country."

Police Division only one of its kind in region

by Jonathan S. Broadfoot
News staff writer

The Bowling Green Police Division is among the elite.

The BGPD is the only law enforcement agency in Northwest Ohio to attain national accreditation. The police department is also one of 288 law enforcement agencies accredited in the United States. There are more than 18,000 law enforcement agencies in the U.S.

Accreditation criteria

- ✓ Three assessors inspect department.
- ✓ Comply with more than 800 standards set by the commission.
- ✓ Implement accreditation guidelines into department.

"It was a voluntary choice and we felt it was our job to be the best we can be to the community," Chief of Police Galen Ash said.

Reflecting back to the idea of the BGPD's national accreditation, Ash said it is a step toward professionalism.

Over the last four years, the police division has been in the process of writing and implementing an extensive set of policies and procedures to comply with the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies' guidelines.

"To become accredited, we had to prove our compliances to the commission agency," Ash said.

Finally, on Nov. 17 of last year, the BGPD received national accreditation from CALEA.

Lt. Thomas R. Brokamp, the accreditation manager, said the CALEA -- which is a specially-trained commission -- sent three assessors to inspect the operations of BGPD.

Capt. Thomas Votava said the inspection team investigated all the aspects of police activity. BGPD then underwent a four-day inspection by the CALEA assessors to report on the police department's operations.

According to Brokamp, the BGPD had to comply with more than 800 standards. The standards covered all areas of police administration, operations and procedures.

Since the city's main focus is education, being nationally accredited proves to the public that the police department is a professional establishment like a university or hospital, said Ash. Ash hopes that someday being nationally accredited will be mandated throughout the nation.

Although the city has spent more than $12,000 in accreditation fees, Ash believes it was worth it.

"It is a good, long term investment. I think the community and city will reap the benefits now and years to come," Ash said.

The high accreditation costs consisted of administration fees and assessor expenses, including accommodations and airfare.

Carjacking deaths prompt concern in America, Japan

by Anh Bui
The Associated Press

TORRANCE, Calif. -- Takuma Ito and Go Matsuura shared a Japanese heritage and American dreams.

This weekend, people on both sides of the Pacific grappled with the violent deaths of the 19-year-old college students who were shot in the head in a car-jacking Friday night. Their life-support systems were turned off Sunday.

"It's too bad that his dream was broken in the America my son loved," said Matsuura's father, Shuji Matsuura, outside the hospital where both families stood vigil after flying in from Japan.

Flags flew at half-staff at the campus where both students were aspiring filmmakers, tiny Marymount College in Palos Verdes.

"We will reach out to the other students, especially to Go's and Takuma's close friends, so that together we can confront this appalling event," said Marymount President Thomas McFadden. "Our community is devastated by this terrible tragedy."

In Japan, U.S. Ambassador Walter F. Mondale said "this is the saddest day in my time here as ambassador."

"The American people deplore this senseless act of criminal violence and we share in the sorrow of the Japanese people," said Mondale.

Ito and Matsuura were gunned down Friday night as they got out of Ito's car in a supermarket parking lot in nearby San Pedro. The car was found parked on a San Pedro street Sunday afternoon.

It will be checked for fingerprints and other possible clues, said Los Angeles Police Officer Don Cox.

Perot can't solve problems alone

He just doesn't give up. Once again Ross Perot is trying to solve the country's problems, this time proposing his own health care reform plan.

At a convention of the American College of Cardiology earlier this month, Perot spoke of his concerns about the Clinton administration's health care reform plan and also encouraged doctors to mail him $1,000 apiece to help create a better one.

Perot said his new plan, 'Put Patients First,' will rely on doctors -- not government -- to oversee the management of health care. He is pitching in $1 million himself to the plan to improve health care.

While it is good to see people like Perot concerned about issues, we at The News believe he should take a different approach in helping to solve the issues.

Ever since he first stepped on the political bandwagon, Perot has tried to do things pretty much on his own. From running his own presidential campaign to leading the opposition against NAFTA, he has been a one-man show.

Perot has to be commended for his innovative ideas and ways of capturing national attention.

However, in order to actually make a difference in this new endeavor or in any of his goals, he has to stop being showy and acting like he has all the solutions. Instead, he has to prove that he does have viable solutions by working with health care officials and the current administration.

By working with the administration instead of voicing criticism against them, Perot may be able to gain more respect with them as well as actually helping to improve things for the country.

Perot has the attention of a large part of this country's population. His showing in the presidential election of '92 is proof positive of that. Now all he needs to do is harness this power to the best of his ability.

If he's really interested in making changes for this country, he needs to use his power to accomplish his ideas. But in order to do this, he needs to stop being the flamboyant showboat he seems so intent on being.

Congressman Walters votes

The United States Congress.

These four words are at times enough to get the American public in an uproar. But why?

Well, a large majority of the public has the impression the democratic-controlled Congress can't do anything right. I would tend to agree.

But how do we know what our representatives are actually doing? Well, it's really quite easy. All we have to do is look at the Congressional Record to see how our representatives voted on legislation.

So, this week, I will do exactly that. I will let all of you know how our representatives in Congress voted on some issues.

Ohio has 19 members in the House of Representatives. They are:

John Kasich, a Republican from District 12; Sherrod Brown, a Democrat from District 13; Thomas Sawyer, a Democrat from District 14; Deborah Pryce, a Republican from District 15;

Ralph Regula, a Republican from District 16; James Traficant, a Democrat from District 17; Douglas Applegate, a Democrat from District 18; and Eric Fingerhut, a Democrat from District 19.

For this exercise, we will be looking at five roll call votes that were taken in the House to see how our representatives voted.

I will also inform you of how I would have voted, had I been a member of Congress. My votes, of course, are the correct votes.

James Walters

The five votes we will look at are:

1. Banning immigrants with the HIV/AIDS virus. This roll call vote, taken on March 11, 1993, was on an amendment by Rep. Thomas Baily, R-Va; to ban the immigration of persons from foreign countries who have the HIV/AIDS virus. It was approved 356-58.

I would have voted YES on this amendment.

On vote #1, the members of Congress who voted correctly were Reps. Mann, Hall, Oxley, Gillmor, Strickland, Hobson, Boehner, Kaptur, Hoke, Kasich, Brown, Sawyer, Pryce, Regula, Traficant, Applegate and Fingerhut.

The only member of Congress that voted incorrectly was Rep. Stokes.

2. Lifting the ban on gays in the military. This roll call vote, taken on September 28, 1993, was on an amendment by Rep. Martin Meehan, D-Maine, to lift the ban that prohibits open homosexuals from serving in the military. It was rejected 264-169.

I would have voted NO on this amendment.

On vote #2, the members of Congress who voted correctly were Reps. Mann, Portman, Hall, Oxley, Gillmor, Hobson, Boehner, Kaptur, Hoke, Kasich, Pryce, Regula and Traficant.

The members of Congress who voted incorrectly were Reps. Strickland, Stokes, Brown, Sawyer, Applegate and Fingerhut.

3. Bill Clinton's Pork Barrel "Economic Stimulus Package." This roll call vote, taken on March 19, 1993, was on President Clinton's so-called $16.3 billion "Economic Stimulus Package," which was full of pork barrel spending for special interests. It was approved 235-190.

I would have voted NO on this

On vote #5, the members of Congress who voted correctly were Reps. Mann, Portman, Hall, Oxley, Gillmor, Hobson, Boehner, Kaptur, Hoke, Kasich, Brown, Pryce, Regula and Applegate.

These results demonstrate that the Republicans overwhelmingly voted correctly, with the Democrats having overwhelmingly voted incorrectly.

On vote #3, the members of Congress who voted correctly were Reps. Mann, Oxley, Gillmor, Hobson, Boehner, Hoke, Kasich, Pryce and Regula.

The members of Congress who voted incorrectly were Reps. Hall, Strickland, Kaptur, Stokes, Brown, Sawyer, Traficant, Applegate and Fingerhut.

4. The Clinton Tax and Spend Budget. This roll call vote, taken on August 5, 1993, was for final passage of President Clinton's five-year budget resolution, which included an enormous $241 billion tax increase and massive growth in federal spending. It was approved 218-216.

I would have voted NO on this resolution.

On vote #4, the members of Congress who voted correctly were Reps. Mann, Portman, Oxley, Gillmor, Hobson, Boehner, Hoke, Kasich, Pryce, Regula and Traficant.

The members of Congress who voted incorrectly were Reps. Hall, Strickland, Kaptur, Stokes, Brown, Sawyer, Applegate and Fingerhut.

5. Taxpayer funded abortions. This roll call vote, taken on June 30, 1993, was on an amendment by Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill, to prevent taxpayer money being used to pay for abortions, except in the case of rape, incest, or to save the life of the mother. It was approved 256-171.

I would have voted YES on this amendment.

The members of Congress who voted incorrectly were Strickland, Stokes, Traficant and Fingerhut.

These results demonstrate that the Republicans overwhelmingly voted correctly, with the Democrats having overwhelmingly voted incorrectly.

The Republicans voted correctly 100 percent of the time, with the Democrats voting correctly only 42 percent of the time.

Soon-to-be House Republican Leader Newt Gingrich recently said that all the Republican candidates for the United States House of Representatives will be meeting to announce what legislation they will pass if the Republicans are elected the majority party in Congress this election year.

I heartily suggest that in light of the above results, all Ohioans, and indeed all Americans, listen to what Gingrich and the other Republicans have to say and elect a majority of them to Congress.

That would be a big step in the move toward solving some of our nation's most serious problems.

Besides, the next time I talk with Newt I would love to be able to call him Mr. Speaker.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Scolding won't create new sports fans

The BG News:

This letter is in response to the March 16 editorial, "Students must support Falcons." I doubt that The News is creating any new Falcon sports fans by scolding the student body for their lack of interest. Now, really, did you think that would work?

Students are under no obligation to show "school spirit" for the various sports teams here at the University. In light of the fact that my tuition, fees, etc.

help to pay the salaries of coaches and athletic staff, as well as the fact my tax dollars are helping to pay for the educations of individuals here on athletic scholarship, I feel that I have contributed enough to the sports teams, whether or not I have been "lagging in my school spirit duties." Proclaiming an attendance of 1400 at a hockey game "sad" is ridiculous, especially in comparison with the much lower numbers of students who attend many other University events, such as musical programs and theatrical events. Or, perhaps, since the editors of The News have never made calls for people to come out en masse in support of these functions, they feel that these other functions are less deserving of support. Additionally, it seems rather odd that the editors of The News think that "the only way the athletes on our teams will succeed is if there are people ... cheering them on," when it seems evident by their fine records that the teams have somehow managed to do well thus far, despite the alleged lack of support.

Since The News is plagued by copy errors and lack of legitimate editorial content, it seems to me the editors might spend their time more wisely if they spent less time at sporting events and more time on their newspaper.

Correction

The March 14 edition of The News incorrectly implies that The Link is involved in requesting programming for counseling on campus.

In fact, The Link is part of a task force which addresses the problem.

A mistake was made in the March 17 article "WFAL Station of Year finalist."

In the article, it was incorrectly stated that George Privateer was WFAL's promotions director.

George Privateer is in fact WFAL's program director.

Tiffin poet earns award, critics' praise for works

by Courtney B. Gangemi
News staff writer

Tiffin University poet David Shevin has been awarded an Individual Artist Fellowship by the National Endowment for the Arts for 1994 and his latest released book has been receiving praise from various critics.

Shevin teaches writing and literature at Tiffin and has won two Individual Artist Fellowships from the Ohio Arts Council. In 1988, his book Discovery of Fire won the Ohioana Prize for best book of poetry by an individual from Ohio. He has published 10 books of poetry, according to Larry Smith, director of Ohio Writers Series.

"The peer recognition is a wonderful boost," Shevin said regarding the NEA fellowship. "To be recognized as worthy in this community ... it's like being Bar Mitzvahed, only you're old enough to be ready for it this time."

Ohio publisher Bottom Dog Press has just announced the release of Shevin's latest book of poetry entitled Needles and Needs. It is an eight-page collection in cloth and soft cover and features his socially and politically engaged writing, according to Smith.

"It is included in the Midwest Writers Series of Bottom Dog Press, an independent literary publisher," Smith said.

Praise for the new book has come from diverse sources, according to National Public Radios commentator Andrei Codrescu.

"The particulars of America -- a durable, justice-loving America -- pour forth their lights in David Shevin's poems," Codrescu said.

Courthouse receives audio equipment to aid court jury

by Katie Carroll
News staff writer

In response to the American Disability Act, Wood County improved the county courthouse's audio equipment in its courtrooms by spending $10,000 for five units of equipment.

Audio equipment was last updated in 1980 after the courthouse was refurbished, but it did not accommodate for special circumstances.

Microphones were used for attorneys and witnesses, but it was sometimes difficult for everyone in the courtroom to hear the testimony.

To accommodate for the jurors, attorneys and clients who had difficulties hearing what was said in the courtroom, the courthouse installed a sending unit that uses infrared rays which are targeted to a receiving unit, which picks up the slightest sound from anywhere in the room.

"We have had jurors at different times that couldn't hear, but we have to make them jurors regardless of hearing problems," said Judge Donald A. DeCessna. "If the juror cannot hear anything, then we have to bring someone in to sign for them."

The new equipment can be used for other purposes, such as meetings outside the courtroom or in the jury room during discussions.

Difficulties hearing in the courtroom affected a relatively minor number of people, and, before the new equipment was installed, the courthouse had to make people raise their voices.

The courthouse has also made moves to accommodate persons with other physical problems.

"This is a barrier-free society and we must accommodate for all citizens," DeCessna said. "We have a ramp up the back of the building. We cannot discriminate against anyone. In a generalized way, we try to accommodate everyone and give equal opportunity to everyone in the courthouse."

BG students get Anderson scholarships

by Courtney B. Gangemi
News staff writer

Three University students are a little richer after winning Harold "Andy" Anderson scholarships at the pre-game ceremony of the Bowling Green-Toledo basketball game March 5.

Each student won a scholarship of $400 for the 1993-94 scholarship. The winners included Jodi Aurand of Perrysburg and Stacey Limes and Charles Genson of Bowling Green.

They were selected on the basis of academic achievement, campus involvement and financial need, according to Phil Mason, vice president for University Relations.

"I was very surprised, excited and happy to be picked," Limes said. "Plus I need the money for next fall."

The winners attended a reception before the game and met with the Greater Toledo Area Alumni, according to Limes.

"We were aware that we had won the scholarship before the game," Limes said.

"I was very surprised, excited and happy to be picked. Plus I needed the money for next fall."

Stacey Limes, winner of the "Andy" scholarship.

The recipients were mailed applications after qualifying under specific criteria, Limes added.

The awards are given annually to residents of Wood and Lucas Counties in honor of Anderson, the University's most successful basketball coach who compiled 504 victories during his coaching career.

Anderson was Bowling Green's athletic director for 23 years before his death in 1967. He was elected to the National Hall of Fame in 1985, Mason said.

The scholarships are funded by the Greater Toledo chapter of the Bowling Green Alumni Association and Charles Share of St. Louis, an all-American who played for Anderson, according to Teri Sharp, director of News Services.

Aurand is a senior elementary and special education major. She is a member of Kappa Delta Pi education honor society and a recipient of the Norman Lattanza and Minifie scholarships.

She is also a section leader in the University's Marching Band and a member of the Ohio Student Association and the Student Council for Exceptional Children.

Aurand also volunteers at the Children's Resource Center in BG and has helped with the Special Olympics track program. She currently holds a 3.83 grade point average.

Limes is a junior pre-physical therapy major and an active member of Active Christians Today, the Pre-Physical Therapy Club and an organizing member of Collegiate 4-H/McDonald's Scholarship, Mid-Am Scholarship, BG Alumni Scholarship and the Elks Scholarship.

Limes volunteers at Jaycee's Recycling Center, coordinates Sunday nursing home services and is a hospital volunteer. He currently holds a 3.7 grade point average.

Genson is a biology major with a chemistry minor and a sophomore of the University. In 1992 he received an honorable discharge from active duty in the United States Air Force. While in the Air Force, Genson was an honor graduate from the Air Force Medical Service Academy and the USAF Emergency Medical Technician School.

He is a member of Alpha Epsilon Delta pre-med society and is vice-president of General Military Council.

He is a volunteer tutor with the Eastwood school district, has also volunteered with the University's blood drive and was a concession stand volunteer during University football games. He holds a 4.0 grade point average.

Teamsters reject proposed increase

by Robert Naylor
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON -- Teamsters President Ron Carey won't rule out another rank-and-file referendum to increase dues despite the embarrassing rejection of his proposal for a 25 percent dues hike, he said Monday.

Members overwhelmingly rejected Carey's call for the hike aimed at raising $100 million annually to rescue the financially troubled Teamsters.

"I don't know if that's one of the options," Carey said, "but I wouldn't rule it out."

Members of the Teamsters voted 3-to-1 against the increase. The unofficial final count, completed Sunday, showed 383,222 union members opposing the increase and 121,925 supporting it, spokesman Matt Witt said.

Carey had proposed diverting half of the new money to the union's strike fund, which could go broke as early as June. A fourth would have gone to the general treasury, which could be bankrupt by mid 1995. The remaining $25 million would have gone to the local.

"The first move is to eliminate waste and increase efficiency," Carey said. "That's what our members have been telling us is the issue."

One other option might be to have local unions set up their own strike funds, he said.

The Teamsters' treasury ran nearly $40 million in the red for the first nine months of 1993. Its membership is down to about 1.4 million from 1.9 million in 1979 and still dropping.

Carey personally called for the dues referendum and campaigned vigorously for it among the union's membership. Rivals sued him in federal court to stop the vote. Last month, a federal judge ruled in his favor and allowed the vote to proceed.

Carey last week tried to soften the blow, saying the membership had "made it clear that there is still too much waste, duplication and bureaucracy throughout the Teamster structure."

Carey, a former United Parcel Service driver, has been involved in a bitter tug-of-war over control of the union since his election as a reformer in 1991. He has accused old guard Teamsters of corruption but at the same time has been dogged by unsubstantiated allegations of ties to organized crime. He has accused the old guard of undermining the union. They have accused him of being all image and no substance.

Carey moved last Monday to abolish the union's four regional conferences. Carey said he would ask the union's board of directors at its April 19 meeting to revoke the charters of the conferences, which have been a part of the Teamsters since 1937. He is not seeking dissolution of the Canadian conference.

Conference leaders have called emergency meetings for Tuesday in four cities to plan a strategy for fighting Carey's plan. They have hired a Washington law firm and the matter is expected to end up in court.

Carey had considered his base of support among the union's rank and file, but insisted the defeat did not damage his prestige.

"It was never a litmus test for me," he said. "I said from the very beginning that this was an impossible kind of a situation, but we will try it," he said.

Detroit union lawyer James Hoffa Jr., the son of legendary Teamsters boss Jimmy Hoffa, disagreed, saying the vote represented a "resounding defeat for Ron Carey and his leadership in the union."

Hoffa said Carey had "lost a great deal of personal prestige because he personally became involved in the dues referendum."

He said Monday that the rejection was "not embarrassing at all" to him.

"Who wants to pay more? No one," he said. "And they sure as hell don't want to pay more when their business agent or conference director pulls up in a Cadillac Eldorado."

"You cannot sit idly by while the general president creates a financial crisis because he is angry at the rank and file for having rejected his dues proposal," Walter Shea, president of the union's Eastern Conference, said in a letter Monday to the board members.

Fugitive ends flight, own life after search spanning four years

by Robert Macy
The Associated Press

LAS VEGAS -- A former judge committed suicide, ending a four-year flight from justice after he was charged with stealing $1.8 million entrusted to him in his private law practice.

John C. Fairbanks, 70, of New Hampshire was found with a plastic bag over his head in his hotel room, where he left a note taped to a mirror, Metro Police Homicide Sgt. Bill Keeton said Monday.

Fairbanks disappeared on Dec. 28, 1989, a day after he was indicted. An extensive investigation yielded few clues, despite the help of national TV crime programs such as "America's Most Wanted."

He checked into the MGM Grand Hotel on Thursday under another name and overstayed the two nights he paid for, Keeton said. On Sunday, hotel employees broke into the room, which was locked from the inside with a deadbolt.

"He left a note that can be interpreted as a suicide note," Keeton said. "In the note he said his real name was John Fairbanks, and to contact a son in Denver for positive ID."

Coroner Ron Flud said an autopsy determined Fairbanks died of asphyxiation. He ruled the death a suicide.

The indictment charged that for more than five years, Fairbanks transferred into his personal accounts money entrusted to him by clients or belonging to beneficiaries of trusts and heirs of estates that were administered by him.

At least 25 former clients or their estates filed claims totaling more than $6 million. Some of his clients were elderly retired people who entrusted their life savings to him.

In 1991, claimants settled for about 15 cents on the dollar. The money came from a state fund set aside to cover fraud by attorneys, and from the Fairbanks family.

Fairbanks resigned after more than 30 years as a Newport Dis-

Sullivan County Attorney Marc Hathaway said: "Are we glad it's over? Sure, but it's a great tragedy that it had to end this way."

"He was a trusted local attorney who took the opportunity afforded by that trust to make himself millions of dollars through theft," state Rep. Peter Burling of Cornish once said. "And he stole from the weakest and most vulnerable people."

Company plans to slash jobs, employee suspense

The Associated Press

CINCINNATI -- Procter & Gamble Co. is proceeding as quickly as possible with the voluntary part of its worldwide job cuts so it can shorten the suspense for employees, the plan's architect said.

Gerald Dirvin, a P&G executive vice president, said the company is about 60 percent done with its plan to eliminate 6,500 jobs through early retirement and voluntary-separation packages.

At that rate, P&G would complete that part of its $1.5 billion restructuring by 1995, a year ahead of schedule.

"I think we need to get on with this and beyond it as fast as we can," Dirvin told The Cincinnati Enquirer in an interview published Monday. "You can't keep people in this kind of a state any longer than is absolutely necessary."

Dirvin, 57, is retiring next month under the program he created. The restructuring is intended to help the company function faster and more efficiently by eliminating excess management layers.

"There's fewer layers of management. It's the kind of thing with my leaving and my position going away," said Dirvin, a 34-year P&G employee who is one of the company's top four executives.

"I don't expect there are going to be a lot of changes at or near my level."

"We found that in some parts of the organization, we had as many as 10 layers between the entry level and the CEO," he said. "We told our organization the basic rule is no more than seven layers between the bottom and the top."

The Cincinnati-based consumer products company announced the restructuring in July. P&G also will close about 30 of its 147 plants, which will reduce its worldwide manufacturing capacity by 20 percent and eliminate another 6,500 jobs.

The company has announced five of the plant closings since November.

P&G had worldwide sales of $30.4 billion for the fiscal year ended June 30.

"Our restructuring is a little different than most because we're at a point in time when our business is good," Dirvin said. "There was not the doomsday kind of atmosphere that has surrounded a lot of restructurings."

"We're restructuring to make the company faster in the markets in which it does business. And it can get faster by simplifying. I really believe the big don't eat the little -- the fast eat the slow," he said.

One-day wait necessary to get abortion

The Associated Press

COLUMBUS -- Women seeking abortions are surprised and angry to learn about a new state law requiring them to wait at least one day between receiving fetal development information and getting an abortion, clinic directors said Monday.

"It's news to them," said Carol Dunn, executive director of Toledo's Center for Choice II abortion clinic. "They don't like it and they think it's stupid."

The law took effect March 14.

Abortion clinic staff members around Ohio said women generally have not been aware of the law until they come in for an abortion and learn they have to come back.

"My staff said we have people regularly saying, 'Can't we just bypass the law, and we'll say you did it?' We say, 'No, we won't do that,'" Dunn said.

The law requires clinics to give women a state-prepared pamphlet on fetal development at least 24 hours before the women have an abortion.

Carolyn Buhl, executive director of the Preterm Clinic in Cleveland, said the clinic still is gauging women's reaction to the law. But so far, she has seen anger, especially from women having to travel a long way for two clinic visits.

Janet Folger, legislative director of Ohio Right to Life, said two trips are not necessary because women can receive the printed materials through the mail or from local doctors.

But Alice Malin, director of Founder's Women's Health Center, said some women will not consult local doctors or use the mail because of confidentiality concerns.

Catherine Boncela, executive director of Capital Care Women's Center, said the number of women consulting with the clinic and deciding to go ahead with abortions had not dropped since the law was enacted.

Dunn said her clinic had not anticipated the additional time staffers must spend with patients. The clinic will have to raise fees, she said.

Bureau embroiled in scandal

The Associated Press

DAYTON -- A report that a tourism bureau inflated attendance figures and submitted reports for events that never took place at the city's convention center underscores the need for government oversight, officials said Monday.

"Clearly it's of grave concern," Mayor Mike Turner said. "It shows the problems we're having at the convention center are management issues that have been ongoing for several years."

The Dayton Daily News said Sunday that the Dayton-Montgomery County Convention and Visitors Bureau reported that 4,000 people attended a sports show in February 1991 and put $250,000 into the region's economy, but the event never occurred.

"We have a lot of things on the books that never actually came here," said Glenn Wallberg, director of the convention center. "We gave the bureau goals. They said they met them, but in reality they didn't."

The bureau is a subsidiary of the Dayton Area Chamber of Commerce, which is funded from private donations and local taxes.

Since 1989, the city has paid the visitors bureau more than $1 million to market the convention center. But the occupancy rate of the center fell from 48 percent in 1990 to 44 percent in 1993.

Turner said the City Commission will have to decide if it wants to market the convention center differently. He said he favors government oversight of the bureau.

Montgomery County Auditor A.J. Wagner, whose agency has had no role in auditing the bureau, said allowing it to operate in the private sector "shows how things can be hidden from us."

"I think it's important that we bring the convention and visitors bureau back into county government so that we can keep a close eye on how things are done," Wagner said. "It should be subject to public scrutiny."

Jim Alexander, the former bureau president, was fired in October following allegations that he padded expenses and used chamber funds for personal items. No charges have been filed, but he remains under investigation by the Montgomery County sheriff's department.

Calls to Alexander to comment were not returned. However, Alexander told the Dayton Daily News that he and his staff did a good job of marketing the convention center.

Barbara Hayde, vice president of the bureau, said the number of bookings as well as attendance figures may have been inaccurate because staff members reported on future as well as past events and took the word of meeting planners.

"The contract did not require us to give them follow-up reports," Hayde said. "In retrospect, we should have. I don't feel anyone purposefully misled anyone."

New police chief to make changes

by Thomas J. Sheeran
The Associated Press

CLEVELAND -- A new police chief took office Monday with a mandate from Mayor Michael R. White to improve police relations with the city's diverse neighborhoods.

"The time is right to renew our partnership with the community," Patrick Oliver, 37, told a swearing-in audience that included city officials, family members and police brass from Cleveland and elsewhere.

After a nationwide search, White picked Oliver to lead the 1,600-member police force.

Oliver had been chief of the 70-officer suburban Metroparks police department since 1989 and before that was a State Highway Patrol trooper for 11 years.

Besides improving the police-community partnership, Oliver said he also hopes to maintain high professional standards for the department.

"I will give you my best because you deserve no less," said Oliver, who credited his father, a retired police officer, with prompting his interest in a police career.

Oliver did not mention specifics but said police must do more to prevent crime.

Oliver replaced Chief Ed Kovacic, who was asked by White to retire. Kovacic now is director of security at the Gateway sports complex.

White had praised Kovacic's work but said he wanted a new police chief to underscore his commitment to revamping the department and moving toward community policing.

Thompson among the elite

GAINESVILLE, Fla. -- It was Christmas, 1978, two years after Tony Dorsett had won the Heisman trophy at the University of Pittsburgh and a young boy pulled on the number 33 jersey worn by his hero.

Dorsett, who is the National Football League's second leading rusher, was the best at his game both at the collegiate level and the professional level. He had fulfilled every young boy's dream by aspiring to be the best no matter what the cost.

The young boy's hopes and dreams were being pushed by Dorsett's success. Closing his eyes and pulling off the jersey, the boy knew he could aspire to reach any goal. And when the boy opened his eyes it was 1993 and he was staring at a field of the best hurdlers in the nation.

The boy was Falcon hurdler Scott Thompson and he had finally arrived, albeit as a scared young collegian. But competing in the NCAA indoor track and field championships was a dream come true.

But the enormity of the meet and the intimidation of the competition prevented Thompson from rising to the level he needed to place.

It was certainly a change of scenery for the Lima, Ohio native who all through high school walked through his Division III competitions. His high school times at Central Catholic were nothing to look at twice, but Thompson had his dream. And in the Ohio state meet, Thompson blasted through the 110-meter hurdles in 14.55 seconds to become a state champion.

But at the collegiate level, Thompson wouldn't get away with walking through the meets on raw talent alone.

His ability had to be honed to compete against the best runners in the nation. No longer was Thompson in the small fish bowl of Division III Ohio. He was now in the big leagues and he'd have to prove he was worthy.

"Most of his success has been because he has matured in college," Thompson's coach Steve Price said. "He's gotten much stronger and much faster. And the level of competition has brought his level of performance up."

Glen Lubbert

Thompson didn't make it out of the semi-finals in his sophomore appearance at the NCAA indoor meet. But this season Thompson wasn't intimidated by the competition and he ran his best time to get into the finals of the 55-meter hurdles.

He ran 7.19 seconds to make it to the finals and set a new school indoor record. In the finals he ran 7.28 finishing fifth, good enough for All-American honors. His accomplishment isn't one to be looked upon lightly as no BG men's runner has reached that goal during the indoor season in ten years.

The experience was one that has made Thompson more confident in himself and allowed him to realize that he has the ability to compete with anyone.

It also made his competition stand up and take notice that the young developing hurdler from Division III Lima, Ohio wasn't swimming in the little pond any longer.

Thompson is now among the elite and anything less to him would now be a disappointment.

"It put him on a whole new level of competition," Price said. "He is now one of the top collegian hurdlers in the country. He's now a national runner and has got some pride in himself."

What's next for the All-American?

Well, his development as a hurdler is only beginning and he still has the goal of outdoor All-American to achieve in the 110-hurdles.

Will he be able to step up his running to yet another level?

Without a doubt, Thompson will keep his focus on the NCAA outdoor championships in Boise, Idaho. During the track team's spring trip Thompson debuted his indoor season with a 14.19 second victory in the 110-hurdles in Auburn before bettering his time at the Florida Relays with a 14.12 run.

The NCAA automatic qualifying time for the 110-hurdles is 13.72 seconds. Thompson believes he can make it and the coaches agree.

Whatever he accomplishes in the outdoor season, Thompson can be content to know he has done his best to achieve his goals.

While most just give up when they aren't among the elite, a few stick it out and strive for the most. They believe someday they might just get a break.

Thompson is one of those individuals who has forsaken the lighter side of athletics for a serious pursuit of excellence. He has affixed one goal in his mind -- to be the best.

Softball team off to rugged start

by Pat Murphy
News sports writer

A 3-14 start was not what first year softball head coach Rachel Miller had in mind for a team returning 12 letter winners.

"We won't close the door," Miller said.

The repeating MAC champions participated in the Cellular One Capital Classic Sacramento State tournament over spring break. They suffered through a winless tournament filled with costly errors.

"We have one error then a mental error and it shakes us up. We haven't played seven innings of ball," Miller said.

However, the competitors were among the top teams in the nation. Fresno State, the number seven ranked team in the nation, beat BG twice. Oklahoma and Texas A&M also made the field very strong.

Vizquel strengthens middle

by Chuck Melvin
The Associated Press

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. -- He won't be featured all that often on the nightly replays of spectacular defensive plays, because Omar Vizquel is too good for that. He makes it look too easy.

"He's got the best hands I've ever been around, and I played 18 years in the big leagues," Cleveland Indians infield coach Buddy Bell said. "I could sit and watch him take ground balls all day."

The Indians acquired Vizquel, 26, in the December trade that sent Felix Fermin and Reggie Jefferson to Seattle.

The trade seemed to represent only a modest upgrade, because Fermin is one of the better defensive shortstops in the game, and neither Vizquel nor Fermin is much of a threat on offense. So there was speculation Vizquel would serve as bait for another trade, possibly for a pitcher, thus opening the Cleveland shortstop job for Mark Lewis.

But it now appears Lewis will spend this year as the Indians' utility infielder, and Vizquel's Gold Glove will stay, giving Cleveland one of the best up-the-middle defenses in baseball: Sandy Alomar catching, Vizquel at short, Carlos Baerga at second and Kenny Lofton in center.

"No doubt, we're one of the strongest up the middle, if not first. But we have to prove it," Vizquel said.

That might take some time, because Vizquel and Baerga haven't had all that many chances to turn double plays this spring. It might take a month of regular-season play to develop the timing and instincts to be a good double-play combination, Vizquel said.

"Some second basemen like to feed the shortstop differently," he said. "Some like to throw the ball underhand. Some push it backhand. And when they take the throw from short, some like it on the side. Some like it right at them."

He and Baerga have worked out most of those idiosyncrasies, but it'll take dozens of repetitions under game conditions to smooth them out.

A native and resident of Caracas, Venezuela, Vizquel said he's always had the natural quickness it takes to be a good fielder. Quickness, however, will only take you so far.

"Eighty percent of the time, what makes you good out there is knowing the players," he said. "If you are in the right spot when they hit the ball, all you have to do is make the routine play. I've been around the league 4 1/2 years now. I know the guys. I know where they hit, how they run. I read the pitches so I'll be in the right place."

Vizquel's range will be invaluable to the Indians, because he'll be playing alongside an inexperienced third baseman, Jim Thome, who is on the team because of his hitting, not his fielding. Thome has committed seven errors this spring, mostly on wild throws to first.

"I talk to Jim a lot," Vizquel said. "The first couple weeks, he was nervous. He doesn't know the hitters. I have to remind him who can bunt, who can run well."

"But I cannot change my game. I'm just going to be what I have to be. I can't lose my focus worrying about doing his job."

Bowling Green's Jeff Elvin (14) looks to maneuver past a Michigan State defender during an earlier contest this season. Elvin and the rest of the Falcons were dumped by the Spartans 3-2 in the quarterfinals of the CCHA Tournament.

Spartans skate by BG

by Randy Setter
assistant sports editor

The Falcon hockey team experienced déjà vu against Michigan State, but ended up with a much worse result the second time.

Michigan State came from behind to tie Bowling Green 2-2 in their first meeting of the season. The Spartans came from behind again to send the contest to overtime, but this time they overcame the Falcons, 3-2 in CCHA quarterfinal action.

Left wing Steve Guolla began the comeback like he did in November in East Lansing, but also tied the contest and ended the contest with the game-winner to complete the hat trick to overcome a 2-0 Falcon lead.

"I don't think anybody thought we had it in the bag," defenseman Jeff Wells said. "It kind of hurts with 10 seconds left and they score like that."

Guolla tied the contest with 10.9 seconds on the clock. With goaltender Mike Buzak pulled for the extra attacker, Rem Murray threaded the puck from behind the net through a forest of legs to Guolla's stick.

He preceded to dash the Falcons' playoff hopes, scoring at 9:21 of the overtime period to end the ninth-longest game in CCHA playoff history. The Spartans received the benefit of a no-call against Kelly Harper as he cross-checked Curtis Fry in the back while trying to clear the puck.

"Guolla's a quality player," Wells said. "He's not unstoppable, but he was pretty close to being so tonight."

Before Guolla ignited the offensive attack for the Spartans, BG's team defensive effort looked like it would preserve the win. The Falcons allowed only 23 shots on goaltender Bob Petrie, who blanked the usually potent Spartan offense for almost 50 minutes.

"We worked hard and held them off until the third," left wing Tom Glantz said. "We let our defensive effort carry over from Ferris State the week before."

While Petrie was working hard for the Falcons, Spartan goal-der Mike Buzak was forced to work harder. BG fired 32 shots on net, outshooting the Spartans by a 2-1 margin until the third period.

"The first three quarters of the game, we were playing kind of tentative," Spartan head coach Ron Mason said. "Our kids were nervous and didn't handle the puck well while Bowling Green kept their feet moving and held the momentum. Fortunately, we have a great goalie who kept us in the game long enough."

BG provided the offensive sparks first with Jeff Elvin combining on a two-on-one with Kevin Lune. Elvin, a freshman, demonstrated the moves of an upperclassman while scoring his third goal of his career at 9:17 of the second period.

Right wing Brian Holzinger netted his 20th goal of the season and 35th point to put the Falcons up 2-0 at 17:36. Center Mike Hall hit the streaking Holzinger with a pass just as he was ridden hard into the boards.

Gymnasts finish last in tourney

by Randy Setter
assistant sports editor

All the Falcon gymnastics team could do was stand and watch the MAC's other five teams pass them by. BG finished sixth out of six teams with a score of 183.975 while three of the top teams passed the old MAC record.

Kent State finished first with a 189.175, edging out Ball State (188.775) and Central Michigan (188.725). All three schools broke the conference record of 187.775, set by Central Michigan at last year's championships.

The Falcons, mired by injuries, tallied their second highest score of the year. On the vault and uneven bars, BG had to compete with only five gymnasts instead of the usual six.

"I was impressed with how well we did with as many gymnasts out," Robynn Poortvliet said. "We pulled together pretty well."

Julia Zelikov said, "We were happy to even get that. We put people in the lineup as well as possible."

BG came into the meet with losses to Radford and James Madison. The Falcons also lost Elisa Martinelli with a sprained ligament at Radford.

Karen Jordan lead the Falcons with an eighth place finish in the all-around standings and a score of 37.575. Jordan was the highest-placed Falcon on the balance beam in seventh place (9.525) and the floor exercise in 16th place (9.550). She placed 23rd in vault, third highest for BG and 21st on bars, BG's second best.

Jordan topped Mary Beth Friel's 1991 school record of 9.70 on the balance beam with a 9.775 against James Madison.

Julia Zelikov recorded BG's best vault score with a 9.525, good for 12th place. Jennifer Wenrich was the Falcons' highest scorer, 11th on the uneven bars with a 9.375.

The balance beam was by far BG's best event. Jordan's seventh place finish was followed up by Jennifer Nacca in tenth place (9.475), Ernie Cole in 12th place (9.450) and Kim Pope in 22nd (9.275).

Three Falcons placed with scores above 9.3 on the vault, a rarity this season. Zelikov scored a 9.525, followed by Cole with a 9.375 and Jordan with a 9.3.

"We definitely stepped up on our performances," Wenrich said. "On vault and bars we needed people to come through on their routines."

"It's good we go to California and play tough teams because we come back to the conference and are well prepared," said junior pitcher Lisa Mountjoy, who led the nation in saves last year with eight.

Mountjoy and sophomore Jennifer Wolf combine to form, in Miller's mind, "the best [pitching] combo in the league." Wolf, the MAC freshman of the year last year, earned All-MAC first team honors in her freshman campaign. She went 22-10 with an outstanding 0.89 earned run average last year en route to a second team All-Mideast selection. Mountjoy returns from an 11-8 season and a 1.56 ERA.

Even after a horrible start Miller still feels confident of their chances of repeating.

"It all starts with the MAC. We are definitely among the top three contenders along with Toledo and Central Michigan," Miller said.

Duke in familiar position

by Tom Foreman
The Associated Press

DURHAM, N.C. -- Duke's previous trip to Charlotte may be the biggest reason the Blue Devils are going back there this week.

Earlier this month, coach Mike Krzyzewski's team struggled to beat Clemson in its first-round game in the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament at the Charlotte Coliseum. Duke played poorly in the semifinals and was eliminated by Virginia.

Krzyzewski said Monday that he saw the downfall coming, and it may be that premonition that helped him prepare Duke for its seventh Final Four trip in nine seasons.

"There was nobody who was more down about our performance in Charlotte than me," Krzyzewski said at his Final Four news conference. "I knew what was happening and I couldn't change it."

He pinned the problem on mental fatigue as well as the notion of resting on team laurels.

"We got into that bad habit of wanting to stay back with success instead of pursuing the next opportunity to have success," Krzyzewski said. "We spent a lot of time talking individually and collectively about that, and the kids agreed."

The last time the Final Four was played in North Carolina, North Carolina State won it, which ended UCLA's long run of tournament success.

Duke (27-5) will play Florida (29-7) in the second game of Saturday's doubleheader after Arkansas (29-3) and Arizona (29-5) open things at 5:42 p.m.

"They kind of mirror each other," coach Pat Kennedy of Florida State said. Kennedy gave the Blue Devils a slight edge. "They've been there before," he said.

spite the unimpressive showing in the ACC tournament. It finished atop the league in the regular season at 12-4, with the losses coming to Wake Forest and North Carolina.

It also managed big road victories at Iowa and Michigan, but at times lacked emotion and battled doldrums in victories over Brown and Western Carolina.

"It's important to understand that we were a really good basketball team this year. It didn't start because we lost in Charlotte," he said. "It was lost a little bit in Charlotte."

"It was trying to identify the fact that we had been good or else we wouldn't have been 12-4 in the conference and won the regular season," Krzyzewski added. "And then, figure out why we were not as emotional."

"We got on and we had great practices. They've shown a lot of enthusiasm and they've had a lot of fun," he said.

Finally, something for college that just got less expensive.

Get off Chris Webber's back

by Garrett Walkup
News sports writer

I hate Michigan. I hate maize and blue. I hate "Hail to the Victors." I hate Ann Arbor.

I was born and raised in Columbus, and my parents went to The Ohio State University (Wait, Wolverine fans -- keep reading, it gets better). I will be a Buckeye until I die. But as the NCAA Basketball Tournament rolls on, I am reminded of the great Chris Webber and his unforgettable timeout last year in the NCAA Finals against North Carolina.

As you might have figured, I am not a big Wolverine fan, but I have never seen one player take more abuse and handle that abuse with more class than did sophomore, all he will be remembered for is the T.O.

In the postgame interview, after North Carolina won, Webber said that he cost Michigan the national championship. Yes, I agree he did. Webber was the one who made it possible for them to get there in the first place.

Since he was a frosh, tremendous pressure has been placed on his shoulders and those of his teammates. Books were written about them, controversy has surrounded them and even a new style of uniform (the baggy shorts) was worn by them.

Hundreds of articles and TV reports have dubbed them the best five recruits to ever play together. You thought your exam week was tough -- try taking exams with cameras shoved in your face while playing championship caliber basketball. This was way too much pressure to put on a bunch of kids, and they are just kids.

Chris Webber, leading candidate for NBA Rookie of the Year, is 20 years old and already a multi-millionaire. But his one mistake will forever be remembered.

That is what it was -- a mistake, so let's leave it at that.

Head coach Steve Fisher said it best when he said, "If it weren't for Chris Webber, we never would have made it to the national championship."

Thank you, Coach, for putting that into perspective.

We all make mistakes -- even athletes. Just ask NBA star Charles Barkley who makes it a regular habit of clobbering people. So let Chris Webber up from the chopping block and do what it is he does best -- which is EVERYTHING -- except call timeouts.

Johnson 'Magic' again for L.A.

by Steve Wilstein
The Associated Press

INGLEWOOD, Calif. -- First, Magic Johnson drilled the Los Angeles Lakers in his version of basketball boot camp, then he ran them in a game until their lungs burned and their legs buckled.

If the Lakers don't collapse from the pace he's pushing them, they might be a decent team -- though not likely a playoff team this year.

For the moment, Johnson's victorious NBA coaching debut, 110-101 Sunday against the Milwaukee Bucks, gives him the highest winning percentage among active coaches. A few losses and he'll have the worst. He gave himself until early Monday morning to celebrate.

"Winning as a player, you get to enjoy it. Winning as a coach, you've got to go watch films," he said. "I'll get up early, 5:30, and watch them. I will enjoy this night."

He liked the way the Lakers ambushed the Bucks from the start in one incredible half, an adrenaline rush from the opening jump to a 66-35 lead, and the way they responded to a fierce comeback in the second half. The lapse in the middle, he knew, was from a lack of stamina and unfamiliarity with the new defense he installed.

"We wore them down," Johnson said, "but we wore ourselves down. The thing that caught up to us was fatigue. I'm so proud of the guys. To take one practice and change the whole defensive scheme, they weren't used to it. They did an excellent job. Milwaukee came back like every professional team will. We have to keep up the pressure to the end."

He wants the Lakers so fit they can pressure teams on defense baseline to baseline, tip-off to buzzer. He figures the Lakers don't have the size and strength to win, so they must rely on quickness, endurance and intelligence. Smart shots, clever passes, keep legs and ball moving.

Johnson wants them running the way the Lakers did when he controlled the ball in Showtime. He could use a guy like himself on the roster. Controlling the tempo from the sideline isn't as easy as it is on the court, especially against better teams.

The Bucks are one of the worst teams, losers of eight straight on the road. Beating them by just nine points in a sold-out Forum and blowing most of a 36-point third-quarter lead do not inspire overconfidence. That means more boot camp for the Lakers, who remain six games behind Denver for the eighth and final Western Conference playoff spot with 15 games to go.

"If I can keep them believing in themselves and saying that this is the way we can win and work ourselves into shape in terms of playing this style, we're gonna be fine," Johnson said. "This way that we play is tailor-made for this team because we create a lot of havoc and problems."

They created plenty of problems for the Bucks in the first half.

"It looked like the Lakers of old," Milwaukee forward Blue Edwards said.

"They played a better first half than any team we've played all year long," Bucks coach Mike Dunleavy said. "I mean, nobody's done that to us."

Nobody's made a coaching change like the Lakers this year, bringing in someone of Johnson's stature and personality. He came in charged up, and that's how his players reacted.

"I've been around him enough that I know when he's hyped up," Lakers assistant Larry Drew said. "And this was one of those times when he was really hyped up and ready to get this first one under his belt."

"No matter what happens, I will always remember this day and this game because the guys put forth the effort. They're dead-tired right now."

Chris Webber.

He has been called a loser and someone who ruined the chances for Michigan to take the championship. Basketball legend Bill Walton slammed Webber for not knowing something as crucial as how many T.O.'s the team had.

Well, Bill, timeout for a second. Just because Webber didn't go 20 for 21 from the field and never won a national championship does not mean he is a loser. As I recall, there is another scrub who never won a college basketball championship.

That hack's name is Larry Bird. What a flop HE turned out to be.

With his balanced attack of three pointers, blinding quick inside moves, tenacious defense and superb ball-handling skills, Chris Webber is the complete package. Pro scouts have been licking their chops over this guy since his freshman year.

It is a shame that with all this, and the fact that he is probably the best basketball player to come out of Michigan, even as a
